DREAMSCOPE · THE BRIEF

Your people already know what's broken.

They know how to fix it too. Almost nobody asks them in a way that gets a straight answer. I do, and then I turn what they said into how the place actually runs.

90-SECOND READ

01 / The idea

I don't bring you a culture. I surface yours.

You already have one. The only question is whether it got built on purpose. Somewhere in your company people are already doing what works, and nobody wrote it down. Most culture programs skip that and install someone else's values instead. I start with your people, not a framework.

Everything works better if people love what they do.

02 / The work

Four phases. Start wherever it hurts.

You don't need all four. Most engagements start in Discover, because you cannot fix what you cannot see.

01
Discover
A State of Culture report, and what to do first.

MOST START HERE

02
Inspire
Leaders who want the changes the data calls for.

03
Build or Refresh
The Culture Playbook, and the plan to roll it out.

04
Implement
Seven places running, each with an owner.

03 / Proof

Proven on real data, not a slide.

I ran the Culture Engine on a 450-person company across 20+ locations. A year of data, 40 leadership interviews, 290 survey responses. The receipts:

5 of 7
leadership departures flagged before they happened, validated in a blind retrospective

-87%
supervisor sentiment crisis surfaced, invisible to all 40 interviewed leaders

50
working practices pulled from their own top performers and mapped to strategic goals

None of that came from me. It came from their people. My job was to make it legible.

04 / The honest part

Most culture work stops at the poster.

Values on a wall change nothing and everyone who works there knows it. It only counts once it reaches what people touch every week: how they get hired, trained, recognized, reviewed, and run. I'm an operator, so that is where I take it. At Pizza 4P's that meant 260+ frontline SOPs folded into one backbone managers train against.

Culture you can point at on a wall isn't culture. It's decor.

05 / The operator

20 years running teams, the last ten in Vietnam.

Pizza 4P's CULTURE & OPS EXCELLENCE DIRECTOR	Built Culture and L&D from zero across 37 locations, 4 countries, 3,700 people. eNPS up 18 points, store satisfaction up 20% on average (60% in the best store).
Seller Candy INTERIM COO	Built the operational foundation through 10x team growth and 6x revenue.
Christina's OPERATIONS TEAM LEADER	Led operations from 3 to 8 cities and 50 to 500+ employees. Wrote the employee manual and the full SOP suite.
Delivering Happiness CERTIFIED COACHSULTANT	Corporate culture transformation on the Zappos methodology. Engagements with VPBank, Sathapana Bank, and TP Bank.

The next step is 15 minutes.

A few questions about what you are actually dealing with. I read every one. If it fits, we'll book a call.
